IDEAS FOR HOME BUILDERS BY WM. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 178 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Although the house here shown is not large, being 28 feet wide and 48 feet, 6 inches long, it gives the observer the impression of largeness.

It is an excellent type of residence for a city in which the lots average 50 feet, a size that will admit of room for a lawn and plenty of space for light and air. A house thus set out amid pleasant surroundings will have all the good points of its design fully appreciated and displayed to the best advantage.

The tendency in the city is toward crowding, on account of the increasing value of land, of course. This is to be regretted because when lots are too narrow houses cannot be shown to good advantage, no matter what the excellence and artistic qualities of their design may be.

Fifty foot lots are large enough to meet most builders' requirements, but in many cities, as in Chicago, for instance, the rule is 35 feet. This disadvantage is often made greater by the owner's insistence on a very large house, or by an arrangement of the rooms that requires that the building be wide.

Too often the residence is suited to the builder's demands rather than to the lot and its surroundings. Houses of this sort usually have several dark rooms and often are not well ventilated. In a great many cases they are not much better than apartments.

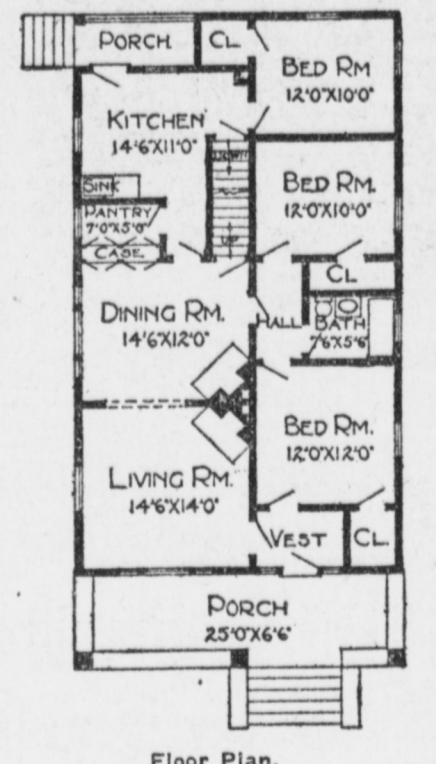

Of course, this difficulty might be avoided by making one fairly large lot of two small ones, but frequently the builder does not feel that he can afford a second lot, and he often further objects to the keeping of a large lawn. But to the normal man the lawn is the chief joy of the home.

The alternative is usually to adapt the house to the lot, to sacrifice some desired feature of the interior arrangements, or even a room or two, in order to attain the really essential light and air.

Now the house here shown is adapted to a lot of small size, and yet there will be plenty of room for light and air. It is especially suited for a west frontage, giving the sunshine to all the bedrooms and shade to the living room, the dining room and the kitchen. And every housewife will agree that a shady kitchen is one of the greatest comforts imaginable.

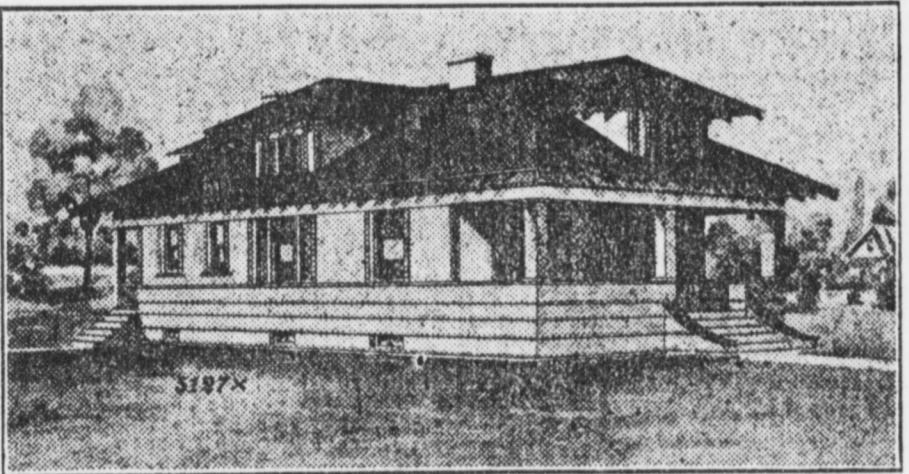

This is a frame cottage or bungalow.

low. The exterior might be treated with rough boards and stained, or cement plaster might be used. It all depends where the house is to be built as to the exterior finish.

The front porch is 25 feet by 6 feet, 6 inches. Entering the house you pass into a vestibule which opens into the living room and also into the front bedroom. The bedrooms, of which there are three, are 12 by 10 feet in size. The living room is 14 feet, 6 inches, by 14 feet, and the dining room is two feet narrower. The kitchen has a length of 14 feet, 6 inches, and a breadth of 11 feet.

The total cost of this complete and cozy little home should not exceed $1,800.

VIENNA'S WAY WITH WOMEN

Georgian Who Did Not Understand and Resented Was Forced to Leave the City.

"Vienna is no place for an American to go with his wife," said a man who has just got back from spending part of his honeymoon in the Austrian capital, according to the New York Times. "My own experience was embarrassing, but that of a Georgian who was there during the summer was humiliating."

"I was told that it was considered good form for a man to offer to buy a drink for any woman he met on the street unescorted. If she repelled his advances he apologized and walked away, and both were supposed to forget the incident."

"The wife of the Georgian was out alone one day when an officer, with a smile, bowed to her and invited her into a near by cafe. She was indignant and ordered him away. He bowed again and went."

"Later in the day the woman was out walking with her husband. She had told him about the incident of the morning and he was feeling like almost any southerner would feel if a strange man had accosted his wife. The same officer passed them and the woman drew her husband's attention to him. That was enough for the Georgian. He sprang after the other."

"What do you mean by insulting my wife?" he demanded, with other words which some might consider appropriate to such an occasion. Then he hauled off and knocked the officer down.

"When the Georgian and his wife reached their hotel at dinner time two officers were there with orders that the trunks of the Americans should be packed and that they be escorted to the next train leaving for another country. The Georgian protested, but the others insisted, and they escorted him and his wife to the train and saw that they left on it."

Ancient English School.

Giggleswick school celebrated recently a quarter-century, because this famous West Riding seminary, though nominally one of King Edward VI's "Grammar Schools," was really first founded in 1512 by James Carr, chaplain to the chantry of the "Rood" in Giggleswick parish church, who purchased a piece of land for the purpose from the prior of Durham. Paley, the author of the "Evidences of Christianity," was educated at Giggleswick, where his father was headmaster. Another famous former alumnus was Doctor Birbeck, the creator of mechanics institutes, but better known to Londoners as the founder of Birkbeck college. A few years ago the school was presented with a magnificent chapel of remarkable architectural design by Mr. Walter Morrison—Westminster Gazette.

Albert B. Kelley, an advertising expert of Philadelphia, sat in the Markham club, turning the seventy or eighty pages—mostly advertising matter—of a weekly.

"Advertising is such an art," he said, "that many people actually buy periodicals as much for the advertisements as for the reading matter."

Mr. Kelley smiled. "I eat in an editor's office the other day," he continued, "when a poet entered."

"Glad to see you've accepted that sonnet of mine," the poet said, feverishly pushing back his long hair. "I do hope it will be widely read."

"It's sure to be," said the editor. "It's sure to be. I've placed it next to one of our most striking ads."

Bible Was Put Into Rhyme. Versifications, not only of the Psalms but of the other books of the Bible, were numerous in the sixteenth century. JAILED FOR HUSBAND

Woman Served Six Years in Prison on Arson Charge.

While Incarcerated Spouse Failed to Visit and She Believed He Was Ill—Liberated, She Has Him Arrested.

Philadelphia.—Deserted, she says, by her husband after he had been acquitted of the charge of setting fire to the Point Chautauqua hotel, in Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., while she served six years in prison, Mrs. Nora Allen turned on him in court here and exclaimed:

"At the trial I kept my mouth shut to save your neck. I went to prison and you went free. I gave you all but $250 of the $1,000 I received for setting the fire."

Mrs. Allen had brought her husband to court on a warrant charging him with desertion, having taken this action only after she had sought him for more than a year, only to be rejected when she finally found him.

In the entire time she was in prison, she said, her thoughts turned constantly toward her husband, although she received no word from him. With tear-filled eyes she said in Magistrate Gorman's court that sometimes while in prison she thought her husband must be dead, at others he was ill. Numerous were the excuses she invented in her own mind to account for failure to hear from him.

When she was released a little more than a year ago she started out to search for her husband, intending, she said, to aid him if he was in trouble. Tracing him to Philadelphia, she learned he had been living in No. 1706 Summer street, but had been taken to the Medico-Chirurgical hospital for treatment. Mrs. Allen visited the hospital and sent word to her husband that she wanted to see him.

"He does not care to see you," was the reply she received. She then went to police headquarters and obtained a warrant against Allen.

"He still is my husband," she said after Allen had been held in bonds of $300, "but my love for him has turned to hatred. I am sorry now I spoke of the Chautauqua hotel fire, but my temper overcame my judgment. Nothing I might say now, however, could be used against him, as he has been acquitted of the arson charge."

Fourteen Ounces Is Removed From Organ of Child in Los Angeles, Cal.

Los Angeles.—Relieved of fourteen ounces of hair, which she had swallowed a little at a time since last November, Virginia Field, an eleven-year-old girl, is resting easily at a hospital and is practically sure to recover.

The girl was injured by a fall last November. Thereafter she suffered from a nervous affection that caused her continually to bite her hair. In this way her stomach was gradually filled with broken strands of hair, and several days ago she was taken violently ill.

The surgeons found the hair balled up in the child's stomach.

MAN'S PROPHECY OF FLYING

Character in "Rasselas" Said That Aviator Would Be Next Step After Swimming.

Chicago.—Among the prophecies of conquest of the air, the account of an inventor's faith that man could learn to fly since they have learned to swim, as found in Johnson's "Rasselas," is interesting. The mechanic says:

"I have been long of opinion that instead of the tardy conveyance of ships and chariots, man might use the swifter migration of wings; that the fields of air are open to knowledge, and that only ignorance and idleness need crawl upon the ground."

This hint rekindled the prince's desire of passing the mountains; having seen what the machine had already performed, he was willing to fancy that he could do more.

"I am afraid," said he to the artist, "that your imagination prevails over your skill, and that you now tell me rather what you wish, than what you know." "So," replied the mechanist, "fishes have the water, in which yet beasts can swim by nature, and men by art. He that can swim needs not despair to fly; to swim is to float in a grosser fluid, and to fly is to swim in a subtler. We are only to proportion our power of resistance to the different density of matter through which we are to pass. You will be necessarily upborne by the air, if you can renew my impulse upon it faster than the air can recede from the pressure."

The prince promised secrecy, and waited for the performance, not wholly hopeless of success. He visited the work from time to time, observed its progress, and remarked many ingenious contrivances to facilitate motion and unite levity with strength. The artist was every day more certain that he should leave vultures and eagles behind him, and the contagion of his confidence seized upon the prince.

In a year the wings were finished, and on a morning appointed, the maker appeared furnished for flight on a little promontory; he waved his mighty avian to gather air, then leaped from his stand, and in an instant dropped into the lake. His wings, which were of no use in the air, sustained him in the water, and the prince drew him to land.

GETS $10,000 ON MELON CROP

Undismayed by Failure Last Year, Rancher Takes Bigger Chances This Season.

Clifton, Colo.—To clean up a neat little fortune of approximately $10,000 as a result of a couple of months' work was the experience of J. B. Jones, a rancher west of town, who decided that there was money in cantaloupes despite his own experience to the contrary.

Jobs, who was a practicing physician back in Pennsylvania, came to the Grand valley to regain his health. He bought a young apple orchard and decided that he would pay his expenses by growing cantaloupes among the trees.

Doctor Jobs ran up against a bad year, however, and last season not only didn't make a profit, but for some of his cantaloupes did not receive enough to pay for the crates. Instead, however, of blaming the melons or the valley, or a hundred and one other things, he decided that the only difficulty with his returns was the way that they were marketed. Consequently he decided to market his own cantaloupes and anyone else's who would trust him with them.

BACKACHE "GETS ON THE NERVES"

Many who suffer from backache and weak kidneys are unnaturally irritable, fretful and nervous. Not only does constant backache "get on the nerves," but bad kidneys fail to eliminate all the uric acid from the system, and uric acid irritates the nerves, keeping you "on edge" and causing rheumatic, neuralgic pains. England's Motto.

"Dieu et Mon Droit"—"God and My Right"—the royal motto of England, was the parole of the day given by Richard I. (he of the Lion Heart) to his army at the battle of Bosworth, in France, on the 20th of September, 1485, when the French army was signally defeated. Dieu et Mon Droit appears to have been first assumed as a motto by Henry VI., 1422-1462. Somer Idem—"Always the Same"—was one of the mottos of Queen Elizabeth; also adopted by Queens Mary and Anne.

"PROUD AND GLAD"

Because Mother Looked So Well After Quitting Coffee.

An Ohio woman was almost distracted with coffee dyspepsia and heart trouble.

Like thousands of others, the drug coffee—in coffee was slowly but steadily undermining her nervous system and interfering with natural digestion of food. (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the poisonous drug found in coffee.)

"For 30 years," she writes, "I have used coffee. Have always been sickly—had heart trouble and dyspepsia, with ulcers in stomach and mouth so bad, sometimes, I was almost distracted and could hardly eat a thing for a week."

"I could not sleep for nervousness, and when I would lie down at night I'd belch up coffee and my heart would trouble me. It was like poison to me. I was thin—only weighed 125 lbs., when I quit coffee and began to use Postum."

"From the first day that belching and burning in my stomach stopped, I could sleep as soundly as anyone and, after the first month, whenever I met any friends they would ask me what was making me so fleshy and looking so well."

"Sometimes, before I could answer quick enough, one of the children or my husband would say, 'Why, that is what Postum is doing for her'—they were all so proud and glad."

"When I recommend it to anyone I always tell them to follow directions in making Postum, as it is not good to taste it weak, but fine when it has the flavor and rich brown color." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FOR SERVING TARTAR SAUCE—PROPER DEGREE OF NEGLECT

Idea Put Into Use by One Hostess Would Seem to Have Many Good Points.

A good idea for the serving of tartar sauce of mayonnaise is suggested by one enterprising housewife. She cuts a lemon in half, cleans out the inside thoroughly and then fills the halves with the sauce. She serves one to each guest. When fish or salad is served the little lemon cups are placed around the edge of the platter and one is taken by each guest. In this way the sauce is kept firm and strong instead of melting into a liquid when put on a hot plate.

DEMAND FOR HEAVY HORSES CONTINUES GOOD AT ALMOST PROHIBITIVE PRICES

Enormous Number of Auto-Trucks Not Crowding Animals Out of Business as Many Are Led to Believe—Number Increased From 13,000,000 to 21,000,000 in Decade.

Profitable Animals on Any Farm.

(By JOSEPH MONTGOMERY, Secretary of Minnesota Stallion Registration Board.)

Never in the history of the draft horse has the future appeared so promising to breeders as now, despite the statements of a leading speaker at the annual meeting of the State Veterinarians' association at Minneapolis that the automobile and auto-truck were driving it out of business. There is no reason, in the light of statistics, why the doom of the draft horse should be spelled by the auto.

Though the enormous number of auto-trucks in the cities might lead one to believe that they were crowding the draft horse out of business, actual figures do not prove it. Statistics in the office of the Minnesota stallion registration board show that the number of sires used in this state for horse-breeding has increased from 3,544, May 1, 1910, to 4,445, May 1, 1912. During the same period the number of registered draft sires has increased 35 per cent, there now being over 1,450 in Minnesota. This is an excellent guide to conditions of the industry in this state and throughout the country.

Never in the history of the Chicago and St. Louis markets, the two largest ones in the United States, has the demand been so keen or the prices so high for high class horses of all sypes, especially the superior draft type. Statistics from the U. S. bureau of animal industry show that the number of horses in this country has increased from 13,500,000 to 21,500,000 in the past decade. The value of all horses in this country has increased from $45 to $115 in the same period. This has occurred despite the increase in the use of automobiles.

First class draft horses have been almost prohibitive in price this year, because of the great demand for them, and a team of drafters has often sold as high as $500 to $1,000. The demand for high class saddle and carriage horses in the eastern cities has been so great that their prices have been almost prohibitive to many who can afford automobiles.

All this should be very encouraging to persons in the United States interested in horse-breeding. When horses have increased at so rapid a rate the last two years, and prices have kept soaring in spite of the increase, there is no reason to believe that the automobile will ever drive them out of business. Instead of the automobile causing a scarcity of horses, it could be more reasonable to say that the scarcity of horses has caused the temporary advent of the automobile and auto-truck.

Farmers in Minnesota need not fear the grow more horses. If they are large, sound, and serviceable, they will always demand the highest prices. The horse industry is founded on a permanent basis, and has no reason to conflict with the automobile industry in any way.

KEEPING POULTRY FREE FROM LICE

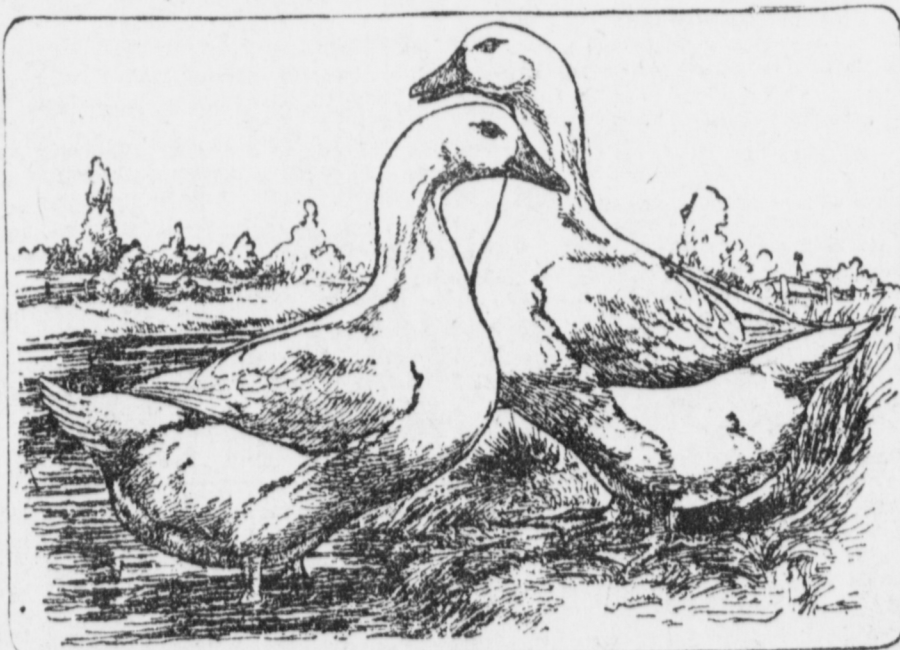

Recipe for Making Ointment Recommended by Prof. Graham—Also Kills Fleas.

What many breeders consider better than powder for killing lice and mites is an ointment recommended by Professor W. R. Graham of Quilph, Canada, one who has made a life study of poultry in the Dominion.

It is composed as follows: Mercury, 50 parts; lard, 25 parts; beef suet, 23 parts; oleate of mercury, 2 parts. The suet, if bought from the butcher, will have to be rendered over a fire and poured into the lard while it is warm, and then stir in the mercury and oleate of mercury. Use a table knife or spoon to do the stirring. Do not put hands into it. Should it prove too stiff to easily apply as an ointment, thin with a little cotton seed oil. All ingredients should be weighed rather than measured. Put it away in small vialine bottles or boxes well covered, and it will keep for months. This ointment will rid poultry of head lice and Texas fleas. For other mites and lice rub it in well about the fluff below the vent and under the wings. It will not only kill the live vermin, but destroy the eggs as well.

It is a valuable thing for turkey raisers to use on the old and the young.

PEKIN DUCKS ARE QUITE PROFITABLE

My market ducklings are all raised from White Pekin ducks, which have the range of a half acre, five ducks to one drake, says a writer in the Poultry Journal. I use hens for mothers, setting the eggs about February 1. I sell them at ten weeks old, when they weigh from five to six pounds, and secure 14 to 16 cents a pound live weight. When the ducklings are first hatched I keep them in small quarters and feed about six times a day, giving mixed feed, a little cornmeal, cut clover and plenty of sand after the first week, about four times a day. At six weeks I give them all they will eat of clean, mixed feed, cornmeal, clover, with fresh meat from a mending place. I feed two quarts of meat, with plenty of sand, to 25 ducklings. The little fellows get fed every time they open their mouths, and begin to walk around. When they are filled up they sit down and grow fat. My experience is at eight or nine weeks to give them all they can eat. I also feed green stuff as soon as it grows. The bulk of my feed the last week is meat and sand; all the meat they will eat. The man I sell to says my ducks beat all he sees; the meat is what does the work. Grain can't touch it. Pure water is essential in duck raising, and good yards, moved often in warm weather, as they are apt to sour. I feed all the sand I can mix in, keeping the ducklings quiet, and do not allow much exercise. All my ducks are sold live weight; it is just as profitable as the other way, and less trouble to handle them in that manner.

Lettuce That Resists Disease. If the earlier reports are to be relied upon, the experts in greenhouse culture at Washington have discovered something of value in connection with hot-house lettuce. By crossing seeds of healthy winter lettuce with varieties related to the wild lettuce and selecting the results with care, it is alleged that a variety has been secured which is practically free from disease and which yet has lost nothing of the finer qualities of the highly bred varieties of lettuce commonly grown in greenhouses. A lettuce which is not liable to mildew, rot, etc., would certainly be a prize for the lettuce specialists. It is stated that the seed will be furnished to the greenhouse men by the department of agriculture, and that great results are expected.

Crop Rotation. Crop rotation means simply the classification of crops according to their habits of growth and methods of cultivation and systematic regular change in the order of growth.

LOOKING FOR DINNER

By H. LITHGOW.

Cunniff's invitation to Thanksgiving dinner had been delivered over the telephone, as has become a usual custom in these hurried and unregenerate days. This, however, did not lead Cunniff to infer that the entertainment was to be in the least degree informal. On the contrary, Cunniff believed that when the Drummonds did anything they did it well. He was judging from their automobile and Mrs. Drummond's gowns and their general air of prosperity, for, although he knew the family rather well, he had never been at their house.

"Say," Cunniff asked Brown, who likewise was to be a guest at the dinner, "where do the Drummonds live, anyway?"

"At Fifth and Timberwood avenue," said Brown. "That big gray-stone affair. You know it?"

"Oh, yes," said Cunniff, grandly. However, as a matter of fact, he did not know it at all.

Late on Thanksgiving day he looked up the Drummonds in the telephone directory between wrestling with his tie and brushing his hair. He found the name at once—4949 Timberwood avenue. Having got the tie to suit him, Cunniff started off briskly at a quarter to seven, for the house was only five blocks from his residence.

He ascended the steps briskly and was a trifle annoyed at the delay in answering his ring. When the door was at last opened Cunniff took a forward step and murmured tentatively his host's name.

The maid swung the door open. "Yes, this is Mr. Drummond's house. Come in," she said. "Please wait in the library." Then she vanished.

Cunniff, in some bewilderment, divested himself of coat and hat in the large entrance hall and proceeded into the room indicated. It was empty.

There was neither host nor hostess lurking in the corners and no other guests had arrived.

"My watch must be horribly fast!" Cunniff said to himself, uncomfortably.

He sat down because there was nothing else to do and looked about him. The room was indeed handsome and probably would appear still more attractive when all the artistically shaded lights were turned on. At present only one burned on the wall near an oaken reading table.

A dead silence reigned. As his eyes grew accustomed to the semigloom Cunniff made out the dining-room table some distance off in the adjoining room. Only the bare mahogany confronted him. Even a mere man knows that for a dinner party the setting of the table must come some minutes before the eating of the meal.

Cunniff crossed one foot over the other and tried to be patient. When twenty minutes had passed without another arrival or the appearance of his entertainers the unpleasant conviction that something was wrong broke upon him.

Yet why had he been admitted if anybody had come down with a serious illness and the dinner had been abandoned?

Just as Cunniff, in a cold perspiration, was miserably meditating seizing his hat and coat and sneaking out he heard footsteps on the stairs. The set society smile he at once donned for Mrs. Drummond's delectation froze on his face as a girl walked in whom he had never seen before. She was a young woman with a most delicious face and Cunniff observed attractive little quirks at the corners of her rosy lips.

"Good evening," she said a little faintly, as she eyed Cunniff. She acted as though she had expected somebody else. "Father has just telephoned me from the railroad station. He and mother have arrived in the city from their Thanksgiving visit. They failed to get the earlier train. If you can wait till eight o'clock—"

"But," Cunniff stammered, "what about the dinner party?"

The pretty girl took hold of a chair and stood behind it. "There isn't any," she said mildly. "Did—did father ask you to dinner? He's so absurdly absent-minded occasionally. Aren't you Mr. Beckmore, the president of the road?"

"Good gracious, no!" Cunniff got out, glad of something tangible to dispute. "My name's Cunniff and I am supposed to be at a dinner party at the Drummonds' at Fifth and Timberwood avenue! And I want to know what has happened to the dinner!"

The pretty girl bent over the chair back and laughed. "Why, I'm so sorry!" she choked. "It's the Drummonds two doors up! We always get each other's mail and packages, but we never got one of their dinner guests before! And you've waited all this time!"

"I don't mind the wait—now," said Cunniff, daringly. Then he fled.

"Now," he ended fifteen minutes later, when he had completed the tale of his wanderings at the dinner table of the right Drummonds and had been forgiven because he had helped out the conversation, "the only way you can square yourself for distracting me by living in a block full of Drummonds is to introduce me to the other ones. At least to the younger members of the family! I'm going to like that girl immensely when I know her!"

Professional Innuendo. An extremely thin actress was boasting of her achievements in stock. "I have been the girl in the 'Girl of the Golden West,' and the Rose in the 'Rose of the Rancho.'"

Yorick Hamm looked at her. "And I suppose," said he, "that if Charley Hoyt had ever seen you, you would have been the original match in the 'Parlor Match.'"

Wonder What Made Her Do It? "A very singular incident happened at the theater last night."

"Yes? What was it?"

"A beautiful girl came in wearing a gorgeous gown."

"But what was singular about that?"

"Why, she came in fully fifteen minutes before it was time for the show to begin."

NEITHER HAYSEED NOR ANGEL

But There Need Be Little Question That Young Lady Had Much Ingenuity.

Across the line on the Kansas side where the study of agriculture is compulsory, one of the high school girls took home her monthly report card and proudly announced:

"I took the highest grade in the class in history, English literature and German."

"That's all very well," replied her father, critically examining the card, "but how about this grade in agriculture?"

"Oh, well," explained the daughter, "I'm no hayseed!"

A little farther down a deportment grade, not altogether satisfactory, appeared.

"And how do you account for this grade in deportment?" he inquired.

"I'm no bloomin' angel, either," she replied.—Kansas City Star.

EASY TO FILL THAT ORDER

Floorwalker Hardly Had to Think to Make Satisfactory Answer to the Inquiry.

"Silk stockings must be very cheap in America. Nowhere in the world do women's slim and supple ankles gleam in lustrous silk as they do here."

The speaker was Robert Loraine, the English actor. He continued:

"A married man told me the other day that, going into one of your department stores, he said to a floorwalker:

"I'm looking for something pretty in silk stockings."

"The floorwalker smiled, and with a gesture embraced the long rows of counters with their charming saleswomen."

"That remark," he said, "describes, I believe, practically every one of our young ladies."

GOOD TRAINING.

"Newpup would make a fine chauffeur."

"Why, how can you tell?"

"Just see how he handles that baby carriage."

No Broken Parts.

During the progress of the morning bath of a few months old infant a little neighbor girl came into the room carrying a doll and stood watching the operation for some time. The little girl's doll was much the worse for hard usage, being minus an arm and a leg. Finally she said to the mother of the child:

"How long have you had your baby?"

The child was informed, and, looking from her doll to the baby, she said:

"My, but you have kept it nice."—National Monthly.

Nor for Her.

"He seems to be so superficial," said Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Gottlealt, as she hung her $15,000 necklace over the back of a chair. "I've noticed that. He's got half a dozen big ones stuffed that he claims he caught. I wouldn't have such things in my dining room."

As we said before the election: There are no empty market baskets now except those made empty by drunkenness, misfortune or Democratic policies.

A man carrying a baby looks as much out of place as a mule hitched to a top buggy.

The Democrats are entitled to one chicken dinner after dining regularly on crow for 10, these many years.

Most of the "handwriting on the wall" is done by boys, and none of it is fit for reproduction in a family newspaper.

F. Hopkinson Smith says many of the wealthy are vulgar. It is like Buck Kilby's observation that most of the poor are.

The bloodhound figures more or less in fiction, and is one of the permanent investments of Uncle Tom's Cabin, but about all that can be said for it is that it eats less than a fox hound.

There, however, is this to say in palliation of the matrimonial alliances of the New York "400." Stripped of floss and flummery, every mother looks with favor upon the sutor who can pay the highest price for her daughter.

Governor Wilson and Governor Marshall are a pair of distinguished, clean, able and admirable men and their administration should be a pleasing and successful one throughout. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Marshall both are eminently qualified to lead society at the White House and shine forth as brilliant women. The Misses Wilson, too, will add much to the gaiety of the Democratic administration.

U. S. STILL A PROTECTIVE TARIFF COUNTRY

In all the debatable states the story of the Democratic victory is one of pluralities and not majorities. There was never the possibility of a third-term triumph, and those Republicans whose efforts at Chicago for the nomination of a compromise candidate were thwarted by Colonel Roosevelt may draw what consolation they can from their vindication.

Meanwhile, talking of disbandment or disintegration is more futile than dangerous. The Republican party is more than an organization, it is an organized principle. Is the fallacy of free trade more vital and more enduring than the doctrine of protection? That the free-trade fallacy can persist, the persistence of the Democratic party, with no other stock in trade than that one falsity, is evidence.

The country, as the combined Taft and Roosevelt vote will show, has not approved free trade at this election. A protective tariff is still supported by the majority of Americans, who, with the menace of a third term removed, will again come together in protest of and resistance to the destructive policy of the Democratic party in fiscal administration. So long as a free-trade party lives a protection party cannot cease to be, even though it may sometimes divide, in the face of the enemy, on false and extraneous issues.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A NATURAL OBJECT-LESSON IN HEREDITY.

The long-looked-for history of the Kallikak family has at last come from the press of the publishers. Under the auspices of the Training-School for Feeble-Minded at Vineland, N. J., Dr. Henry H. Goddard has investigated and compiled the results of his work in the heredity of this most remarkable family. During Revolutionary days, the first Martin Kallikak (the name is fictitious), descended from a long line of good English ancestry, took advantage of a feeble-minded girl. The result of their indulgence was a feeble-minded son. This son married a normal woman. They in turn produced five feeble-minded and two normal children. Practically all of the descendants of these defectives have been traced as well as those of the two normals.

From both normal and defective descendant's of this union came a long line of defective stock. There were 480 in all. Of these thirty-six were illegitimate, thirty-three sexually immoral, twenty-four confirmed alcoholics and three epileptics. Eighty-two died in infancy, three were criminal, eight kept houses of ill fame and 143 were distinctly feeble-minded. Only forty-six were found who were apparently normal. The rest are unknown or doubtful. But the scion of the good family who started this long line of delinquent and defective progeny is also responsible for a strain of an entirely different character. After the Revolutionary war was over, he married a Quaker girl of good ancestry and settled down to live a respectable life after the traditions of his forefathers. From this legal union with a normal woman there have been 496 descendants. All of these except two have been of normal mentality. The exceptions were cases of insanity, presumably inherited through marriage with an outside strain in which there was a constitutional psychopathic tendency. In all the 496 there is not an instance of feeble-mindedness. The off-spring descended from this side of the house have universally occupied positions in the upper walks of life. They have never been criminals or ne'er-do-wells. On the other hand, there has not been a single instance of exceptional ability among the descendants of the first Martin Kallikak and the feeble-minded girl. Most of these descendants have failed to rise above the dead level of mediocrity; indeed, most of them have fallen far below even this minimum standard. This striking study in heredity is commented on at length in a recent number of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Well, sir," said the fair maiden's father when the young man had been ushered into the private office; "what is your business with me?"

"I have been appointed to serve as a committee of one to notify you that you have been nominated to become my father-in-law."

WHEN WOODROW IS PRESIDENT

Chicago Tribune.

"Gentlemen," said the President as he entered the former cabinet room at the White House, "we will hold chapel exercises earlier this morning than usual, as I wish to attend the football game between the seniors and freshmen—that is, between the Senators and Congressmen. Kindly give your college yell."

The members of the White House faculty immediately sprang to their feet and, led by the Professor of State, shouted:

"Rah, rah, rah!
Rah, rah, rah!
White House!
White House!
U. S. A.!"

"Very good, gentlemen," said the President, smiling; but before he could say anything more pandemonium broke loose outside.

"Rah, rah, rah!
We're the best that lives!
Kill 'em, smother 'em!
Kick 'em, choke 'em!
House of Representatives-lives!"

"I must ask the dean of the undergraduate department," said the President calmly, "to again inform the young gentlemen in his charge to confine their college yells to their own building and dormitories and the campus adjoining thereto. The Capitol has been especially set apart for the seniors and juniors—or, I should say, the Senate and the House of Representatives—and they must not encroach on the graduate department. I would further remark—"

At this moment there came another fierce yell that almost shattered the windows in the White House. It was!

Hoop la, hoop la!
Peaches and cream!
Senate! Senate!
Nineteen thirteen!"

"I wish to explain," said the Vice-President, who acted as dean of the senior class, "that the boys are having their annual hat and cane rush to decide whether or not during the present term the freshmen—or Congressmen, rather, shall have the right to carry canes and wear silk hats."

"I have never been opposed to a healthy college spirit," said the President, smiling more broadly, "and I do not intend to oppose such a thing now. I know it is a custom now of our little school to begin each session of Congress with the annual hat and cane rush, and I realize the freshmen fight very hard for this privilege, for a new Congressman feels very foolish if he has to wear a little gray cap with his long black coat and carry his hands in his pocket. While not—"

"Blackstone, Chitty!
Mandamus tort!
We're the boys
Of the Supreme Court,
WOW!"

"I also am opposed," continued the President as this last yell echoed through the faculty room, "to the Supreme Court taking a hand in the hat and cane rush."

"May I explain, Mr. President," said the professor of war, "that the Supreme Court declares that if it is not permitted to take part in the annual hat and cane rush it will grant an injunction preventing the hat and cane rush altogether. Therefore, the faculty at a special meeting last evening, which you were unable to attend, voted that the judges should help out the seniors if they felt so inclined."

"I would like to remark to the President and the gentlemen of the faculty," said the professor of commerce and labor, "that I have had a little chat with the professor of the treasury, and he concurs with me in a belief that while class spirit should be fostered, it would be well to issue a warning to the undergraduate body not to indulge in unnecessary roughness."

"I took the attitude I did in the matter, gentlemen of the faculty," said the professor of the treasury, "because, as I came down Pennsylvania avenue this morning I observed some fifteen or twenty more congressmen ducking two senators in a horse trough. It is my belief that the freshmen should be severely lectured, either by the President or one of the faculty."

"But I think," interposed the professor of the navy, "that the Senators are much to blame for the roughness of the congressman. I have noticed that when the new congressional class comes to Washington the upper class men have them without mercy. I noticed this morning on Q street a half hundred senators amusing themselves with some new congressman who had just come in from Western states."

"One crowd of senators surrounded a freshman congressman and was making him read the Dingley bill clear through, a most cruel act, at which I protested. Another group of brutal senators was compelling a young congressman to listen to the speeches of William Jennings Bryan spoken by a phonograph, and still more senators were compelling another new congressman to stand on one foot on a sharp picket fence and sing the various chapters of the Sherman anti-trust law. Now, gentlemen, these things are barbarous, and while I am for college spirit as much as our esteemed President, I must say I think we should call a halt."

"Gentlemen," said the President, "I will take this matter up with the student body at chapel tomorrow morning. But I wish to do nothing hastily. I want all our young senators and congressmen to go back to their homes with the happiest memory of Washington, their dear old alma mater. But I will be obliged to say that while college spirit will be heartily fostered, we must insist on more work being done, and I shall emphasize the fact that I will not permit the senior class to graduate next spring unless they pass the new tariff schedule."

"Gentlemen, you will now arise and join in our college song."

The professors arose, and led by the President, sang with great heartiness:

"O how we love our teacher,
And how we love our school,
And help him out with all our might
This country for to rule."

CHILDREN TO ENTERTAIN

Choruses of school children, folk-dancing and gymnastic exhibitions, kindergarten and folk-games, drills and athletic contests by the Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. H. A., the Turners, and many other organizations, will take place in the Central Court every afternoon and evening except Sunday. Free moving pictures on Child Welfare will be given after noon and evening.

On Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, November 22-23, the Historical Pageant given in Central Park in May, 1911, will be repeated.

The directors and managers of the Louisville Exhibit have been preparing for their great task since the National Child Labor Association held its annual convention in Louisville last January. The enthusiasm and inspiration aroused at that time has been productive of such excellent results that Dr. Strong unhesitatingly asserts that the Louisville Exhibit will be the most enjoyable and successful in the history of the entire movement. It has secured the services of 500 young Louisville girls who are studying their various parts and will devote their full time during the week of the exhibit to explaining the various exhibits and giving information and guidance to visitors.

GREAT SCHOOL CONVENTION.

In connection with the Kentucky Child Welfare Conference and Exhibit two other notable conventions will be held in Louisville: the Child Welfare Conference proper will be held November 25th and the exhibit will continue until November 30th. The Southern Educational Association will hold its annual convention at Louisville, beginning November 28th and continuing three days. It is expected that one thousand southern teachers will attend this convention. Mrs. Charles C. Weaver, of Louisville, has taken advantage of the Southern Educational Association and of the Child Welfare Conference, which will be in progress at that time, to call a convention of school improvement workers the first ever held in the world.

BEFORE MARRIAGE THE SWEETEST music in the world is to her say is "I love you." After marriage nothing sounds so good as "Supper's ready."

Nothing pleases a fat woman as much as to see a woman who is fatter than she is.

GREAT MASS OF PROOF

REPORTS OF 30,000 CASES OF KIDNEY TROUBLE. SOME OF THEM IN MAYSVILLE

Each of some 6,000 newspapers of the United States is publishing from week to week, names of people in its particular neighborhood, who had used and recommended Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder troubles and urinary disorders. This mass of proof includes over 30,000 testimonials. Maysville is no exception. Here is one of the Maysville cases.

Mrs. John Wallingford, 108 Commerce street, Maysville, Ky., says: "I am glad to confirm the testimonial I gave in 1900, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. Several of my neighbors have been cured of kidney trouble by this remedy, and a member of my family was also cured of a serious case of kidney complaint by its use, after other medicine had failed. Every once in a while I get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at J. J. Wood & Son's Drug Store, and use them. In this way I keep my kidneys in proper working order and ward off any kidney troubles."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The 23d Day of November,

At 12 o'clock p. m. we will offer for sale to the highest bidder the old Lloyd farm of

256 Acres

On the Salem Turnpike, one and a half miles Southeast of Germantown, in Mason county. This farm has been in continuous possession of the Lloyd family since 1832. It has had careful management, has always been a famous tobacco farm and is now in a high state of cultivation.

This farm can be divided to advantage and will be offered for sale in parcels and as a whole. There is a good two-story dwelling, a tenant house, all necessary outbuildings, barn room for 35,000 pounds of tobacco, a never-failing and well-distributed supply of stock water, and fencing in good condition. The place is one and a half miles from churches and schools on a good turnpike that leads to the stable door. This farm pays a good per cent. earned on the tenant system and is desirable either as an investment or as a home.

For further information apply to Dan H. Lloyd, Germantown, Ky.

It is reported that more homicides were committed in Memphis, Tenn., in proportion to population, during the last ten years, than in any other city in the United States. New Orleans ranks fourth in the list with Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, Ga., respectively, occupying the second and third places. It used to be that Lexington, Ky., was up near the top; that particular line of business, but it seems there are eight or more cities now ahead of her.

AT FRANKFORT

Conference to Decide Means of Pushing Franchise Tax Suits Against Corporations

Justus Goebel sent the following telegram to ninety-three County Judges outside of Central Kentucky, urging them to attend the meeting called to be held at Frankfort today to discuss ways and means for pushing in the courts the suits which have been filed by the State against a number of corporations for franchise taxes.

"The Judges' and attorneys' meeting at Frankfort, November 8th, will be epoch-making in the history of this State. The interest of every taxpayer of your county is involved and demands that you and your County Attorney attend without fail. Millions for school and other purposes are at stake and must be fought for."

TO FIGHT DISEASE

Campaigns Start in Three Sections of the State Under Health Board's Direction

Campaigns for the eradication of hookworm, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and other preventable diseases will be undertaken under the direction of the State Board of Health next week in Jefferson, Breathitt and Butler counties, the campaign to continue six weeks.

Dr. W. W. Richmond will conduct the campaign in Jefferson, Dr. I. A. Shirley of Winchester in Breathitt, and Dr. J. S. Lock of Barbourville in Butler.

The board has discontinued the hookworm and pellagra work in the Eastern State Hospital, preferring to conduct the campaign in the counties until the weather prevents, when the work will be resumed in the hospitals.

The State Board of Health will meet Wednesday, probably in Frankfort.

No. 29—OUR GROWTH and SERVICE

This new type of banking organization simply filled a public need—and so won public approval rapidly. Moreover as years passed, the absolute security which it offered became better known; while its superior merit in every fiduciary capacity—as the agent either of individuals or of corporations—grew to be more fully recognized and more thoroughly appreciated.

In the making of this impressive record this Company has had a not unimportant part. An idea of its development, and of its present resources, may be gained by examining our most recent statement, which will be cheerfully furnished upon request.

Loses Valuable Horse

Last Friday afternoon, James M. Ware of this city, lost his fast trotting horse, "Bulger," in an unfortunate accident. Mr. Ware had the horse out in the alley, exercising him, when the animal turned suddenly, breaking his right leg just above the hoof.

"Bulger" would have made a record of better than 2:15 next year. At Germantown this year, the horse captured first prize in the roadster gelding ring, and second tie in the roadster, horse, mare or gelding ring, $100 premium.

WORLD'S LARGEST DIAMOND

JOHANNESBURG, AFRICA—A diamond weighing 1,649 carats has been discovered in the Premier Mine. This is the largest diamond in the world.

The Youth's Companion For 1913

The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful vim and vigor, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in the great games, with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But the Companion does not surrender these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the page for little children and the weekly doctor's article; Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches which touch gently on common foibles or caricatures touchingly. In short, for less than 4 cents a week the Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge.

Names rarely seen in tables of contents will be found in The Companion's announcement for 1913, which will be sent upon request, with samples of the paper, to those not familiar with it.

Every new subscriber for 1913 will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1912; also free The Companion window transparency and calendar for 1913 in rich, translucent colors, the most beautiful of all Companion souvenirs. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkeley street, Boston, Mass. New subscriptions received at this office.

ELECTION ECHOES

Champ Clark was re-elected in Missouri.

Not a Republican Congressman was elected in Indiana.

Pennsylvania for the first time gives its electoral vote for a Democratic President.

For the first time since the Civil War St. Louis went Democratic in a Presidential campaign.

At Madison, Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette refused to make any statement on the election results.

Sereno Payne, famed for his tariff bill, was re-elected in New York in spite of the Wilson plurality.

Wilson carried Utica, N. Y., the late Vice President's home city, and Cincinnati, Taft's home city.

Kansas, Michigan, Arizona and Oregon have declared for woman's suffrage, but Wisconsin defeated it.

Bryan, Champ Clark, McCombs, Foss, Harmon, Underwood and Henry are suggested for Wilson's Cabinet.

In Brown county, Ohio, Wilson received 3,451 votes, Taft 1651, Roosevelt 569; Cox, for Governor, 3,529, Brown 1,793, Garford 482.

MILLION SHY

Of Popular Majority Over Taft and Roosevelt is Wilson

Although Woodrow Wilson was elected President of the United States in one of the greatest upheavals in the history of American politics, the vote shows that he was in reality minority President-elect. Wilson's popular plurality was estimated at 2,092,397 over Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Wilson's total seems to have been 6,756,500. However, the combined Roosevelt-Taft popular vote is 7,737,000. The total vote for President Taft and Col. Theodore Roosevelt was nearly 1,000,000 more than Governor Wilson's vote.

The Socialist party made large gains everywhere. Eugene V. Debs polled over 800,000 votes for President, which is a gain of nearly 100 per cent. over the national Socialist vote four years ago.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn Lady Suffered a Great Deal, But Is All Right Now.

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die. At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well. I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardui. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardui is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years. Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

N. B.—Write for Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and of-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.

Got Jack Johnson's Goat
CHICAGO, November 8th.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, tonight occupies a cell in the County Jail due to his failure to furnish a $30,000 bond for his release on a charge of violating the Mann act.

As he left the Federal building handcuffed to Deputy Marshal Northrop, after a futile plea to not have his wrists manacled, Johnson seemed greatly dejected, but he said nothing.

In his extended fight for bond Johnson shed tears, pleaded and offered cash bond in almost any amount.

Latest News

Warships of all the powers are speeding to Constantinople to protect Christians there.

The sum of $14.75 per hundred was the highest price of the week for tobacco at Louisville.

Foreign press says Wilson's election is a triumph for good government and a sign of National prosperity.

West Virginia was carried for prohibition by about 40,000. After the first of next January the entire state will be dry.

County Attorneys and County Judges assembled at Frankfort urged action to retain tax assessment on Kentucky corporations.

Latest election returns indicate that Wilson will have the unprecedented record of 426 votes in the Electoral College, and that he had a good chance of adding the three votes of Wyoming to that total.
